

Free Web Conference Opportunity

The Hazelden Foundation Presents

Cyber Bullying: What Can Be Done to Address It?

Wednesday, April 7, 2010; 2 p.m. Central Daylight Time

Presenters

Sue Thomas, M.A., Business Development Director, Hazelden Publishing (Introductions)

Susan P. Limber, Ph.D., MLS, Center on Youth Participation and Human Rights and Professor of Psychology, Clemson University

Many states are now passing laws that require schools to address cyber bullying. This Web conference is a great opportunity to learn about this growing issue, what cyber bullying is, what impact it is having on students, and how schools can respond.

This Webinar will be presented by leading cyber bullying expert, Susan P. Limber, Ph.D., MLS, from Clemson University, who is also the co-author of two new cyber bullying prevention curricula from Hazelden Publishing. Dr. Limber will provide current information on the use of cyber technologies and the emerging phenomenon of cyber bullying among youth. Participants will learn about best practices in prevention and intervention.

Learning Objectives Participants will be able to:

- Define what cyber bullying is and its prevalence
- Explain the impact cyber bullying has on students and school climate
- Identify strategies schools can use to address cyber bullying
- Introduce participants to new cyber bullying curricula resources

To register, go to: <http://www.olweus.org/public/webinars.page>