Reflect on leadership practice, learn what it takes to lead well, and consider the implications of shifting gears to a different type of practice, whether you are thinking about licensure as a principal, superintendent, special education director, or other central office administrator.

This practical one-day conference is for motivated and talented emerging education leaders, and current leaders seeking new directions: education students, teachers, principals, curriculum leaders, and special education leaders (supervisors, coordinators).

Presented by experts in education leadership, the conference includes general sessions with information and perspectives vital to all education administrators, as well as panels and breakout sessions focused on the specific job skills and expectations of the superintendency, elementary and secondary principalship.

- Keynote with Nick J. Miller, Ed.D., associate professor, Educational Leadership, St. Cloud State University: Critical Leadership Competencies
- Keynote with Jon F. Eller, Ph.D., educational leadership instructor at Virginia Tech, former Executive Director of MN ASCD, author "Creative Strategies to Improve School Culture" and other books: The Leader's Role in Building Strong School Community.
- Concurrent breakout sessions, including:
 - ✓ How to Work Less, Produce More, and Still Get the Job Done in a Sensible School Week, Malachi Pancoast, President, Breakthrough Coach
